Washington Snapshots

The pattern for manufacturing's reconversion to civilian production is taking form, with limited industrial demobilization already getting under way.

This does not mean any slackening of the war effort. On the contrary, it means an intensification of it in selective lines of industry.

The fact is, however, that we have reached the point where more efficient scheduling makes possible the production of needed war goods with less facilities and materials.

Washington has been slow to grapple with the conversion problem, apparently fearing that its motives might be misunderstood and that discussion of postwar problems and contract cancellations might divert attention from war production.

10,000 Contracts Cancelled

But with Sen. Walter F. George (D. Ga.) reporting that 10,000 war contracts have been cancelled and that plant conversion and disposal of surplus materials already have started, the capital realizes that determination of a uniform overall conversion policy requires immediate consideration.

Presidential Adviser, Bernard Baruch has stated he will not head any operating agency to handle industrial reconversions. There are indications that making WPB the top reconversion agency and Chairman Donald Nelson the top reconversion director are under consideration.

Under such an arrangement the WPB would perform a demobilization of industry for war, functioning primarily as an administrative agency and supervising the flow of materials while exacting compliance with its orders.

WPB would work through its various industry advisory committees, depending upon these industrialists to help guide the reconversion program. This would end much of the confusion that has attended consideration of this vital postwar problem thus far.

PRINT WORKS SNAPPERS

We were interested in getting a letter from Pfc. Jerry Kelly, who will be remembered by the print room and color shop as a tall, blond fellow, who used to come down here with Mr. Steinmetz to work on Flannel and Pluse designs. Jerry was drafted and we believe he is now in England. Incidentally, his letter came through in seven days by Air Mail from wherever it started.

Mrs. Sybil Clendenin's husband, Efc. Walter W. Clendenin, Jr., has returned to his post in Oregon after a 15-day furlough.

Pfc. James A. Myrick, stationed at Camp Field, Macon, Ga., is home on furlough.

Pfc. Robert Lewis, Jr., now stationed at Portsmouth, Va., was a visitor at the plant on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hilliard and Mr. and Mrs. Red Hoffman went pig hunting and got train bound.

Pvt. Fred Williams is in on a furlough visiting friends. He is now stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hilliard had as guests for supper Thursday night, Pvt. Fred Williams and Bernice Hilliard.

Ben Thornburg S. 2c was home this past week end.

C. B. Frazier, Jr., S. 2c was home this past week end.

Proximity Surgical Dressings Room To Close For December

Due to the lack of material the Proximity Red Cross surgical dressings room will be closed during the month of December. The following group of workers were present on Monday night: Mesdames E. P. Talley, C. S. Becker, Lawrence Forrester, R. C. Go-forth, A. S. Arnold, C. F. Noah, J. H. Murphy, J. T. Carruthers, A. B. Caudle, H. B. Ritter, Woodrow Inman, Horace Pennington, Eddie Chambers, Gustav Ziprik, J. D. White, Misses Frances Holman and Phoebe Richards.

During the month of November the Proximity room turned out 2,350 dressings.

Miss Madie Phillips and Irene Hornburg spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Phillips of Siler City.

Mrs. T. H. Thornburg is ill in the hospital at Thomasville. She is the mother of Frank and Walter Thornburg.

Fought Japs in Pacific

WITH A SQUADRON OF AMERICAN PLANES on board, one of the British Navy's newest aircraft carriers—the "Victorious"—is shown in this Official U. S. Navy Photo at a South Pacific base. For several months, this great "floating airfield" served in a task force of the U. S. Pacific Fleet. British and American naval planes flew on and off each other's carriers with an efficiency that bodes ill for the Japanese when more of Britain's Navy joins the American, Australian and New Zealand warships in the Pacific.

The Second Front In American Thinking

By W. M. McLaurine
Secretary & Treasurer, American Cotton Manufacturers Association

—Part Three—

The entire family of reformers and planners and political perpetuators, and preferred groups is busy with its replanting of ideas in the grove of politics wrecked by the storms of World Wars I and II. They are availing themselves of every advantage. Unless something happens, the new grove will in no way resemble the old grove but will stand as a weak substitute for the glorious and prosperous past.

There must be in this nation men of power and prestige who can take charge of this delicate and difficult task of supervising the standards and types of political ideas that can be again incorporated in our nation life. We need men of the practical type, men who live broadly and unselfishly, men who lived as our ancestors who planned our democracy and laid down the principles for its promulgation. There are too many men in Government today who have no knowledge of the practical.

Former Governor Frank M. Dixon of Alabama, in one of his able addresses, said that he knows of no better place to select these men than at the "Crossroads of America." There democracy was born and nurtured to fruition. In the hurry of present day affairs of commercialism and moral confusion, these people at the crossroads have let slip their responsibility for preserving democracy and it has been assumed by people alien to our ideal. These new leaders have a strong hold on Government at the present time.

The little towns and the back country folks of America must awaken and break the chains of these Federal controls and speak again for the freedoms of mankind in terms of real democracy and not in terms of the socialized state.

Some Guiding Principles

The following principles were suggested by Mr. H. W. Prentiss, Jr., president of Armstrong Cork Co., in an address before the National Association of Manufacturers at its last convention in New York:

1. The rigid observance of constitutional limitations by the Executive.
2. Respect for the checks and balances of our Federal System by all departments and segments of Government.
3. The reduction of bureaucratic power to a minimum.
4. The maintenance of an independent judiciary.
5. Continued emphasis on the equality of all men in the administration of Government.
6. Unwavering adherence to civil and religious liberties under the Bill of Rights.
7. Efficiency and economy in every phase of Government activity.
8. Equitable taxation.
9. The protection of all minorities, regardless of political, racial, religious, or labor affiliation, or non-affiliation.
10. Vigorous and unhampered local self-government.
11. Competitive private enterprise, saturated with a deep sense of social responsibility.

The Trees Rearranged

When the terrific upsurge of the present day finally subsides, there will be so many dislocations that we will move into a seemingly new world. Just as many new ideas are now being tried out, even so in the peace days many new ideas will be proposed and some adopted.

There is now a common purpose motivating this nation which has all hearts and minds and muscles united.—that common purpose is victory, the preservation of democracy, whatever that may finally be made to mean.—the freedom of man in all of his ethical and personal expression and desires.

There must be a common, motivating purpose in peace that will dominate and direct the hearts and minds and muscles of our people so strongly that this nation will no longer be a group of dangling classes seeking personal privilege above the common good. There must be national ideas that will enact our common desires.—that will in reality insure the freedom of our dreams.

Perhaps a philosophic outline of such a motivating purpose should be made before we enter into some specifics. This purpose must be motivated by a new faith which must speak in positive terms rather than negative terms. It must also stand for the achievement of good rather than the suppression of evil. It must always watch the weak as well as the strong and see that all classes and conditions of people are justly protected and promoted under its tenets. This means that the economic pressures of unemployment and lack of economic opportunity shall be made less tense and removed if possible. Unemployment should be prevented rather than cured. More attention must be given to our obligations than to our rights, and on our services to the community rather than the benefits to be gained. Finally this faith which will motivate man-

Crossroads Democracy

A direct quotation from Governor Dixon states: "Democracy is not a thing of Washington. Democracy is a thing of the crossroads that the people of this nation live. It is at the crossroads that their children are born. There they go to school and to church. There the average American citizen lives his life and is finally taken to his fathers."

"It is at the crossroads that the life of America takes place—not in Washington. All of those things that touch him most closely happen at the crossroads. The exercise of democracy is there. Let his local officials become overly ambitious and interfere with his rights and duties, he knows it immediately and he acts. Let any local dictator seek to establish himself and at once he has the means and the methods to strike him down. The base of democracy is there and there it will endure or die. There it is strong, tenacious, determined, strong."

"Bureaucracy knows this and dreads it. Bureaucracy has lulled democracy to sleep. It must be awakened. We must stop watching Washington and call at the crossroads. Here freedom was born and here it must be regenerated and reborn. The American Way of Life must not perish. The bureaucrats must be pushed aside so that freedom and democracy can live again. The great electorate is safe when it thinks,

Fletcher Brockman Gra-Y Club Enjoys Trip

The Fletcher Brockman Gra-Y club of the Proximity school enjoyed their November educational trip to the Guilford Dairy. Tuesday afternoon. The group had become interested in dairy products and its corresponding values in nutrition. The plant manager Mr. McGlothlin directed the tour beginning with the receiving department, inspection, sampling, washing and sterilization machinery, processing room, pasteurization department was one room receiving much attention, because it is here that milk is conditioned for safety in human consumption. Then came the manufacturing of ice cream, mixing, whipping, packing and freezing all of this was very instructive; but the generous helpings served the group was the real "proof of the cream."

The milk processing, bottling, packing and storage was all very revealing to the group of youngsters; but again the sampling of the milk as it came off of the assembly line substantiated all impressions made on their minds.

Last of all was our visit to the dairy barn where old "Dobbie" the fleet of draft horses were kept. It was the first time many of the boys had seen a horse shod with iron and rubber shoes for winter work on hard pavement streets. The village blacksmith with his hammer was a musical treat of rare nature for the boys. Those attending the meet were: Pte Faircloth, Jimmy Baynes, Johnny Scott, Ralph Nabors, Kenneth Lane, Rudolph Slate, Tommy Russell, Billy Austin, and H. M. Angel, leader of the group.

News Of Our Boys In Service

PFC. LAWRENCE JORDAN
Pfc. Lawrence Jordan, 913th Guard Squadron, Seymour Johnson Field, N. C., spent a recent furlough visiting his parents and friends here. Son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Jordan, 1313 Hubbard street, he entered the Army in October, 1942, and received training at Walnut Ridge, Ark. He returned last week to Seymour Johnson Field. He is a former employee of Proximity.

CPL. HARVEY L. OZMENT
Corporal Harvey L. Ozment, formerly of Proximity, returned recently from Fort Meyers, Fla., with his wife, Mrs. Katherine Ozment, who has been with him in Florida. Corporal Ozment spent 10 days here visiting his mother, Mrs. Cora Bess Ozment, of White Oak, and other friends. He returned alone to Fort Myers, Nov. 26th. His wife will make her home here at 1214 Walnut street.

Entering service in October, 1942, Cpl. Ozment received his training at Fort Myers Gunnery School.

Health-Recreation Department News

Basketball is getting off to a good start in both gymnasiums of the Y. The two varsity teams and the two junior varsity teams have already played a number of exhibition practice games. Judging from games played between the Proximity varsity and the White Oak varsity teams and the two Junior teams they are evenly matched in their respective divisions. We are looking forward to their giving a good account of themselves in the leagues to open December 6th.

Th White Oak varsity team engaged the Military Police team from B. C. No. 10 on the White Oak Y. floor Tuesday night, November 30. And what a bunch of big fellows they proved to be. Coach Starling put in every man on the varsity and several junior varsity players against the big soldiers, and they all received a good going over. Irie (Bunk) Leonard, home on furlough from the Air Corps played with the home team and scored just half of their points, 18. Red Leonard made 7 points, Frank Starling 6, Leroy Weaver 3, and John spectators was out to witness the contest. Thomas Jones 2. A good number of rest and cheered very lustily when the home team made points.

The M.P.'s will play the Proximity varsity in a few days and coach Jack Hughes will have a chance to see what his boys can do with the big fellows. Elkins, Cole, Steele and Hughes the "Four Horsemen" of the Proximity team. White Oak sends their best wishes for a successful try.

Both swimming pools are in good condition for swimming, the temperature of the water is just right, so come on men and swim and relax in the Y. pool. There is no better exercise for relaxation.

Not In Position To Judge

Little that is new can be added to a discussion of the General Patton episode. In fact, we are inclined to believe that entirely too much has been said already. However, since a good many of our readers have shown unusual interest in the unfortunate affair, we do not feel that we will add any fuel to the fire if we give our viewpoint.

Yes, we agree that the General had no business whatsoever to slap any of his subordinates, regardless of the circumstances. We also agree that General Eisenhower should have taken proper official action in respect to the incident as he may have. As a whole, we agree that the whole situation was extremely unfortunate, and we have little doubt but that it is being used by our foes outside and inside this country to our nation's detriment.

After admitting that General Patton is guilty of a most serious offense, we must also conclude that none of us are in position to judge the whole affair intelligently. It must not have occurred to many who have been most critical that probably some information is still being withheld because of its military importance, and if this information were known we might revise our opinion of General Patton somewhat. If the whole story were told at this time our entire cause might suffer.

It would appear that if we are willing to trust the fate of our cause in the hands of General Eisenhower we should, at least until the war is over, be willing to let him handle this affair as he sees fit.

When the war is over and when the whole story can be told without jeopardizing the welfare of this nation, then, and only then, should our civil authorities, our Congress, or we as individuals pass final opinion.

We have so much inside of this country that our Congress, the administration and we as individuals should concern ourselves with if we truly are interested in serving our nation well. In other words, let's forget about the Patton affair by leaving it in the hands of the military authorities in the European theatre of war, at least until the war is over, and let's direct our attention to the many unfortunate incidents and the many iniquitous situations which boldly show their ugly faces and serve as stumbling blocks to the attaining of the type of peace that we in this country as a whole desire and deserve.

Plan Menu-Make Food Go Further

Today food is vital, and although there are definite shortages of several favorite foods, avoiding waste will greatly increase the available supply for all. Homemakers are not responsible for all of the waste in the home, but they can go a long way toward conserving food by careful planning, says Jessie Alice Cline, home economist.

Meal planning makes food go further by (1) preventing overbuying, (2) assuring meals high in nutritive value and (3) providing meals that are so appetizing every bite is eaten.

Prevent overbuying — buy only what is needed. That extra fruit or vegetable which "dries up" or which may be just a bit more than is needed for the particular dish being prepared, must be saved. Sometimes a sweet roll or part of a loaf of bread becomes stale because someone didn't want his usual second roll, or in the latter case, the bread was planned for one meal, but biscuits were served instead. This is the place where the homemaker's responsibility enters. She must plan her meals so that extra roll and bread will be used in bread pudding or some other dish in the meals to follow.

Planning meals high in nutritive value can make the food supply go further too. Choose from the more plentiful foods, the ones that provide the greatest amounts of the food nutrients. Prepare and serve them so that the nutrients as well as the foods are conserved.

Planning meals so that every bite will be eaten is of greatest importance. The difference between an appetizing or "hum-drum" meal may mean the difference between food eaten and food left on the plate to be thrown away.

In Memory Of Our Baby

by her parents,
Guy and Margaret Stutts

Gone, forever, from our home is our baby, who was so sweet. She has gone to be with Jesus, and to sit at His feet. She was given to us for just a little while.

We still seem to see her precious loving smile.

How empty are our arms, that pressed her to our heart's.

The angel came so quickly, and severed us apart.

But I am glad to know she is safe within the fold.

And ministering to our Father as He sits upon the Throne.

Looking this way, and beckoning us to come.

Keep on looking, our darling, 'till we make the grade.

For we know it was on Calvary Redemption's debt was paid.

We are giving our all to Jesus. It is all that we can do.

Trusting He will guide us, and lead us safely through.

Walking daily in His footsteps, while we are here below.

So we can see our darling Brenda when we are called to go.

test were Mr. H. A. Barnes, Moier Ayers and L. J. Butler. Mr. A. S. Arnold presented the prizes.

The Saturday morning Bible stories for boys have begun in the Boys' lobby of the YMCA. Rev. Sisk gave the first story at the White Oak Revolution branch while Rev. Goforth gave the first story at the Proximity-Print Works branch. Mr. H. A. Barnes made up a fine selection of ten Bible characters that will interest boys, and local ministers from the various churches will tell the stories to the boys. After the end of the series of ten stories there will be a Bible story contest put on for the boys' participation, and attractive prizes will be awarded the winners.

The boys basketball league will start Saturday, December 4, with eight teams playing at the two branches of the YMCA.

Leo Patterson is planning to organize a swimming team for boys at the Proximity-Print Works branch. Boys in Proximity and Print Works interested in training for better swimming see Leo at once.

The six school clubs are planning a round of socials to begin the pre-holiday season in December.

This nation is thoroughly aroused to the fact that freedom is cheap at any price and when once the opportunity of outlining future plans for its preservation shall come, all of the sacred ingenuities of man shall be focused upon the problem.

Freedom to Produce

Other students of social progress have remarked that the freedom to produce must provide for all people an opportunity for a decent standard of living and a means of enjoying self respect.

This statement needs to be modified by the fact that the freedom to produce must provide for all people an opportunity for a decent standard of living and a means of enjoying self respect.

The controls of Government came thick and fast when people, who were denied these two precious, personal privileges, became aroused and demanded protection. The vast hordes of unemployed in the '30's with all of the attendant evils resulting therefrom have clearly impressed the thoughtful people of this nation that one of the most important tasks confronting this nation is decent and economic job opportunity. And this means an abiding duty for public and private agencies to continue to perform.

If freedom to work is taken in its full meaning it must indicate not only a desire and an ability, there must be opportunity for work.

Again, if many of the social duties now assumed and discharged by the Government are to be liquidated or at

THE Spirit of Christmas' throughout America can not be squelched by war. It is as much a part of this nation as our homes themselves. Naturally, the fact that we are at war... that so many of our boys are in the front lines of action, has had a sobering influence. This manifests itself in the more practical character of the gifts that are being selected this year. Trivial little knick-knacks are not enjoying their usual popularity. But furnishings for the home are in great demand. We are proud of the part that our store will play in bringing beauty and cheer to the homes of this community, this Christmas.

Y.M.C.A. To Decorate For Christmas Parties

The White Oak Revolution branch other community groups that can make and the Proximity-Print Works branch use of the facilities. Your Y. has of the Cone Memorial YMCA will be decorated and ready for many yuletide activities for all church, Sunday school, young people's groups and needs. Several applications have already been sent in reserving certain room for their Christmas parties, and it is the policy of the local association to grant dates to those making applications first. Now is the time to bring up this social matter before your group, and call upon the YMCA either in person or by telephone so that reservations may be held for your group. It is true that many will be deprived of travel to distant cities to see friends and relatives; but we should not overlook our friends in the community during this war period, but rather do the unusual and have a stay at home Christmas party.

These parties may be of a social or religious nature just as you desire. However, we must remember that many of our own boys will be coming in for the holidays, and let's not let them go back to camp with a feeling that the home front is crumbling, but rather it is behind the boys behind the guns, and that the home front is keeping up the morale, making it a real pleasure to get home to share the fun and Christmas spirit of old and new friends every group should strive to make this the best stay at home Christmas social season in the history of our community. Your local YMCA opens its doors to you and your group under adult leadership from your group or club.

Come in or call today for reservations. First come, first served.

A. S. Arnold Speaks To Gra-Y Clubs Tuesday

At a joint meeting of the O'Henry and Fletcher Brockman Gra-Y clubs Tuesday afternoon, November 30th at the Proximity school, Mr. A. S. Arnold, general secretary of the Cone Y, was guest speaker for the two clubs.

Douglas Kincaid, president officiated. James Fry, chaplain for the O'Henry club conducted the devotional period. The speaker in a very unique manner employed the boys to help decide the general course of his talk by naming them that they admired most as their ideal. Among those chosen by the boys were: Samson, and Solomon of old testament history, Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States, General Douglas MacArthur, General Dwight Eisenhower, General Patton, and General Jimmie Doolittle and Winston Churchill, Prime minister of Great Britain. From these world figures the speaker focused his talk around the general characteristics of these leaders of world affairs. However, he pointed out that boys and men of all walks of life are known and any success or failure they may attain will largely be due to three things as follows: "The companion you keep, the books you read, and the pictures you see". Around this general theme the speaker reached deep into human life and personal experience to challenge every boy present to do his best, and to make the most of all opportunities.

Those present were: Douglas Kin-

SPEAKING OF HEALTH

By DR. VICTOR G. HEISER
Medical Consultant National Association of Manufacturers.

"Kitchen Police" for Safety

The kitchen has become the most dangerous room in the house in wartime, according to safety authorities. Home accidents, including those met in the kitchen, accounted for more than half of all injuries reported throughout the entire country last year. Such things as frayed electric cords, loose rugs, toys or other objects left on the stairs, grease spots on the kitchen linoleum, and pot handles extending out over the edge of the stove have caused serious and unnecessary accidents.

More Home Accidents Today

Home accidents increased 8 per cent in the United States in 1942 alone.

One of the causes put forward for this increase is that many women now employed in war production have left their homes in charge of others who are either too young or otherwise too inexperienced to observe the necessary precautions.

Thus, minor repairs that would normally be made by the housewife tend to be neglected during wartime and accidents are more likely to occur.

The "Little Green Wagon"

When women entered industry on a large scale—there are more than six million women working in war-production jobs alone today—common sense plans were made by management to assist them in keeping their homes safe and their minds at ease while they were at work.

The "little green truck" a hasty wagon that could be sent to a worker's home on short notice, has become a great morale builder as well as disaster diverter in many plants.

The crews of these emergency trucks are prepared to turn off the gas left on in home ovens, unplug the electric iron or heater, turn off the washing machine put some medicine out of reach, or even to let the cat out.

Like Knights of Yore

In war plants women workers are learning accident prevention methods. Where their work requires it, as in welding, they are provided by management with complete suits of protective armor that make them look like the knights of old.

If housewives working in war-production plants were to impart to their helpers at home the knowledge of "safety first" which they learn at the plant, there would be far fewer home and kitchen accidents.

Americans are dying at the rate of one every 9 minutes. To help save these lives, you have only to buy Christmas Seals. The money from Christmas Seals fights the cause of these deaths—tuberculosis. Buy your Christmas Seals today.

Search for tuberculosis among industrial workers and the follow-up of men rejected from the armed forces because of tuberculosis loom large in the wartime Christmas Seal program to control tuberculosis.
